CLASS OBJECTIVES, LEARNING OUTCOMES, ACTIVITIES, GRADING AND SCHEDULE

I. Course Objectives and Content.

This course presents current nutritional problems influencing the health and livelihood of populations in low-income countries. It examines local and global dimensions of malnutrition (over- and undernutrition), food and nutrition security, and micronutrient deficiencies, along with approaches implemented at the household, community, national, and global levels to improve nutritional status. Students will be encouraged to participate at all times. They will engage in a series of class activities, discussions, and presentations. Main topics:

- Overview of global nutrition. Overview of the world nutrition situation in relation to other critical issues of common interest: food supply, poverty, population growth, water and other environmental issues, and the Sustainable Development Goals.
- Health and nutrition. Discussion of major nutritional issues of global concern, assessment, and approaches to address them.
- Nutrition specific vs. sensitive strategies. Overview of current strategies addressing food and nutrition insecurity in low-resource settings such as food aid, complementary feeding, food fortification, WASH, agricultural-focused programs and gender issues associated with them.

II. Student Learning Objectives.

At the end of the course the students will:

- Increase their declarative knowledge of global nutrition issues such as food security, nutrition security, protein/energy malnutrition, micronutrient malnutrition, hunger, famine, poverty, among others.
- Obtain an updated overview of the nutritional issues challenging our World today, and regional trends in nutritional indicators.
- Gain a basic and applied understanding of protein/energy and micronutrient malnutrition, their causes, consequences, and approaches to address them.
- Be able to interpret and apply basic nutrition concepts to critically appraise the impact of current initiatives/programs/policies aimed at improving the nutritional health of communities in low-income countries.
- Understand, visualize, and describe the interactions and linkages between nutrition, agriculture and health, especially in low-resource settings.
- Increase their awareness of the interconnected nature of nutrition with other major issues in low-income countries.
- Gain a deeper understanding of the constraints and opportunities to access desirable foods globally, especially in low-resource settings.

III. Brief Description of Course Dynamics and Activities.

The course comprises lectures, discussions, presentations and individual studies. Group discussions guided by the faculty highlight ongoing research, debated and relevant articles. A group project is assigned as an educational tool to delve deeper in current initiatives/programs/policies, their goals, justification, achievements, impacts and needs for improvement.

1. Lectures. Dr. Andrade will present information that will serve as starting point for class discussions and student projects. The objective is to bring current knowledge on specific aspects of global nutrition to build upon for later discussion.
2. Class discussions. Students will participate in class discussions associated with the lectures, country profile assignments, and initiative/program/policy related presentations.
3. Presentations. Students will work individually and in groups and will present:
 - 1) the nutrition profile of a country (individual x 1);
 - 2) a short description of an initiative/program/policy (2 x group), and;
 - 3) a final, detailed description of the chosen initiative/program/policy (1 x group).
4. Country initiative/program/policy project. Students will submit a short report (3 pages, font 12, 1-inch margins, single space, third person) answering the questions proposed for this activity as a group. Then, each student will submit a 1-page reflective essay (similar format as described before, but in first person) including: 1) your thoughts about your group's initiative/program/policy; 2) information collected through the course; and 3) answers/view changes/paradigm shifts from instructor/peer comments/questions collected on the day of your presentation. You should include all these three aspects to receive full points.
5. Online Quizzes. Quizzes will be available within one week before a new topic starts. Quizzes will be open book and will cover material discussed in a previous class and ahead of class (See information on Canvas). The time to complete the quizzes will vary.
6. Individual Assignments. Students will complete online assignments associated with material covered in class or soon to be covered in class.

Information for all individual and group activities and their evaluation will be posted on Canvas. VISIT OUR COURSE PAGE FREQUENTLY.

Late Policy

Students are expected to submit all assignments on time. Assignments will be collected via Canvas or in class. Assignments not turned on or before the deadline will be subject to a “late” penalty corresponding to a 10% deduction of the maximum number of points of the assignment for every day it is late.

Email

Throughout the semester, your instructor may communicate important information to the class members via e-mail. Importantly, the e-mail address on file with UF (@ufl.edu) will be used for all communications. Forward any other e-mail accounts (Gmail, etc.) to your UF account. When in doubt, use the email system on Canvas to communicate with the instructor.

Academic Integrity

As a student at the University of Florida, you have committed yourself to uphold the Honor Code, which includes the following pledge: “We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honesty and integrity.” You are expected to exhibit behavior consistent with this commitment to the UF academic community, and on all work submitted for credit at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: “On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.”

It is assumed that you will complete all work independently in each course unless the instructor provides explicit permission for you to collaborate on course tasks (e.g., assignments, papers, quizzes, exams). Furthermore, as part of your obligation to uphold the Honor Code, you should report any condition that facilitates academic misconduct to appropriate personnel. It is your sole responsibility to know and comply with all University policies and procedures regarding academic integrity and the Student Honor Code. Violations of the Honor Code at the University of Florida will not be tolerated. Violations will be reported to the Dean of Students Office for consideration of disciplinary action. For more information regarding the Student Honor Code, please see: <http://www.dso.ufl.edu/sccr/process/student-conduct-honor-code>.

Recording in class

Students are allowed to record video or audio of class lectures. However, the purposes for which these recordings may be used are strictly controlled. The only allowable purposes are (1) for personal educational use, (2) in connection with a complaint to the university, or (3) as evidence in, or in preparation for, a criminal or civil proceeding. All other purposes are prohibited. Specifically, students may not publish recorded lectures without the written consent of the instructor.

A "class lecture" is an educational presentation intended to inform or teach enrolled students about a particular subject, including any instructor-led discussions that form part of the presentation, and delivered by any instructor hired or appointed by the University, or by a guest instructor, as part of a University of Florida course. A class lecture does not include lab sessions, student presentations, clinical presentations such as patient history, academic exercises involving solely student participation, assessments (quizzes, tests, exams), field trips, private conversations between students in the class or between a student and the faculty or lecturer during a class session. Publication without permission of the instructor is prohibited.

To "publish" means to share, transmit, circulate, distribute, or provide access to a recording, regardless of format or medium, to another person (or persons), including but not limited to another student within the same class section. Additionally, a recording, or transcript of a recording, is considered published if it is posted on or uploaded to, in whole or in part, any media platform, including but not limited to social media, book, magazine, newspaper, leaflet, or third-party note/tutoring services. A student who publishes a recording without written consent may be subject to a civil cause of action instituted by a person injured by the publication and/or discipline under UF Regulation 4.040 Student Honor Code and Student Conduct Code.
